Mahoning County.

The city was named for John Young, one of the first settlers, who in 1796 purchased a tract of land from the Connecticut Land Company. It now boasts an industrial career which began in 1845 with the first rolling mill, and is one of the most important iron and steel centers in the United States. Its other industries include planing mills, wagon works, roofing, pipe, and oilcloth factories.

Easily accessible, it is just 67 miles southeast of Cleveland.
